

Appreciating Our Partnerships,

Organizations & Corporate Friends

The MCEC truly appreciates the generous support of so many partners. That support takes many forms including individual giving, services in-kind, grants, and corporate giving. Donor partners have been able to find their niche in the MCEC's broad-based programs, providing support in ways that reflect their own sense of social sustainability. The partners of the Military Child Education Coalition reflect the very best of a society of giving - individuals, groups and companies that are eager to help military children find success in education. The MCEC's partners recognize that their investment will pay itself back innumerable times in the form of well-educated, self-motivated, and self-challenged youth.

The sponsors of the MCEC often find themselves involved in supporting training programs that are held throughout the nation, at overseas installations, or at the annual conferences where upwards of 800 professionals and other caring individuals come together to learn and collaborate. What they find there is an increased passion to invest in the support of military children in their quest for educational success.

The MCEC's sponsors come to recognize military children for their service to the nation as supportive members of highly mobile families. They also come to know those children as success stories in their own educational endeavors. And the MCEC's sponsors come to see themselves as giving something back to the military families that support the nation. In sum, they all become a family making a positive difference in the social sustainability of the nation.

"We're involved in numerous communities and charitable and civic activities - but the one that's shown the brightest and resonated, not only with our company but for me personally, was the MCEC..."

- Ed Casey
SERCO, CEO

Partnerships, Organizations & Corporate Friends

The Military Child Education Coalition has been successful in its mission because of its partnerships. The sense of collaboration and support provided by friends who share the vision of meeting the needs of military children has been a key instrument in the development and delivery of high quality training programs and resources.

The Military Child Education Coalition gratefully acknowledges the generous support of our partners and donors around the world. Their commitment enables us to help the almost two million U.S. military-connected children every day. Thank you.
