In light of recent global events, many are wondering how best to discuss these matters with children to help them work through it.

We need to acknowledge that our young people, especially our tweens and our teenagers, are going to encounter images that we won’t be able to control — such as videos and vitriol on Snapchat, Instagram, YouTube, and TikTok — which necessitates proactively addressing the issues with our children.

The following organizations and tools are available for families, schools, and professionals to support youth communication, understanding, and behavioral health during these difficult times.

Helping Kids Work Through the Fear and Consequences of Global Violence — Resources for Families, Educators, and other Professionals:

National Association of School Psychologists
- Supporting Youth Affected by the Violence in Israel and Gaza: Tips for Families and Educators
- Talking to Children About Violence: Tips for Families and Educators

American School Counseling Association
- Helping Students in Troubling Times

National Center for School Crisis and Bereavement
- Talking to Kids about Tragedies in the News
- Talking to Children and Teens About the Israel-Gaza War
