New College Resources Open Doors for Military-Connected Students

Thursday - July 25

With new programs and services, along with long-standing resources, the College Board is focused on expanding access to college for military-connected students. Steve Bumbaugh, Senior Vice President of College and Career Access at the College Board, will share details about a new scholarship that rewards students for every step they take on their journey to college. He will highlight the programs geared to helping military-connected students gain access to college and reflect on what more can be done to ensure these students have the resources and tools they need to succeed in college.
