

KJ Ward

KJ Ward is the former two-time director of Boston GLASS Community Center, a drop-in supportive-services program for LGBTQ youth, and a former member of the Governor's Commission on LGBTQ Youth in Massachusetts. He is also a former communications specialist with McKinsey & Company.

From a close-knit, adventurous and supportive military family, KJ grew up in 10 cities and 3 countries and attended 10 schools. Today, he is an editorial consultant and writer. In addition to publishing extensively on the topic of queer intersectionality, he is also the co-creator of Born and Raised and LGBTQbrats.com, a media project featuring the reflections of queer and transgender adults who grew up in military communities.

KJ earned a bachelor's degree in psychology from Dartmouth College and a master's degree in developmental psychology from the Harvard University Graduate School of Education.
