Jennifer Barnhill, MPA is the Chief Operating Officer and Lead Researcher for Partners in PROMISE, columnist for military.com, freelance reporter and researcher covering military family policy and a Navy spouse of nearly 17 years.

Jennifer's reporting has been featured in Military.com, Military Times, We Are the Mighty, Military Spouse Magazine, Military Families Magazine, TheMilitaryWallet.com, The War Horse and The Independent. Jennifer also serves as the National Military Spouse Network's Career Connection Magazine Editor in Chief. She is also the Military Spouse Liaison on The League of Wives Memorial Project, which is dedicated to memorializing the efforts of military spouses who successfully advocated for the return of their POW-MIA husbands from North Vietnam. Jennifer has a Master of Public Administration from the University of North Carolina Chapel Hill, with a concentration in nonprofit management.

Her passion for the military family community brought her to Partners in PROMISE in March 2020. The 501c3 organization exists to Protect the Rights Of Military children In Special Education (P.R.O.M.I.S.E.). Partners in PROMISE’s research on military children in special education has been cited by the White House and other military nonprofits and has been utilized by Congress to inform policies that govern the Exceptional Family Member Program (EFMP) and military-connected children in special education.
