Dr. Wilmoth is professor, School of Nursing, UNC Chapel Hill and a retired Major General, US Army. She focuses on the health of the military family and that the care they receive in the civilian sector leads to quality outcomes.

An additional focus is on the military child, specifically Reserve-connected children in civilian-centric schools and availability of programs addressing their needs.